6 July 1966; "I would like to go on record with you - if you want to print it, that's your business - as being sick to death of Boardman's perpetuation of this mess. I've told him so, and now I tell you, that his Agent OO-whatever he calls it is the most asinine piece of tripe I've ever seen from an amateur magazine; he's trying to imitate Swift, I guess, but I don't see why he has to make so many enemies doing it." A Letter From the Front; Part II;

Wigss, Germany Feb. 23, 1919

We were digging a trench in no mans land one night and just as we got it finished the Germans threw over a couple dozen shells. But we were all in the trench and no one was hurt. We left on the 21st. of Nov. for Abenville and found 18 sacks of mail waiting for us as we did not get any mail while we were at the front.

We worked thru Dec. and Jan. building Swiss Cottages and cantonments. On the last of Jan. we left for the front at Beaumont. We stayed there 'till the morning of Easter Sunday. Our work here was strengthening our lines and digging a lot more dugouts. We lived here in dugouts and for the first time got acquainted with the trench rat and cooties. I worked here at gas proving dugouts. It was an easy job for when working in the front line we had a detail of doughboys to carry lumber for us.

The trenches were about knee deep in mud and water but we wore hip boots and did not mind it. While we were there I spent three weeks in the Hospital at Toul with the mumps. It sure was a crummy place and I was glad to get away from it, even if we had to stand on the alert at nights and work at day.

We used to stand outside of our dugouts and watch the German shells knock the houses to pieces a hundred yards or so away. This place was right in front of Mc. Sec. We were relieved here by the 26th. Division and the Dutch shore made it hot for them.

We went back to a place called Maron for a short rest and then left for the Montdidier front. We landed there April 25 and from then 'till May 28 we strengthened our lines. This was a hot hot sector as the Dutch had a good bit of Artillery here and they shore knew how to use it. The Hon Coms would work with the doughboys at night and many a night we could see fairly well just by the flashes of the guns.

We lost our first man killed here and before we left lost quite a few more. On the night of May 27-140 picked men from D Co. were chosen to go over with the 28th. Infantry the next morning. The rest of our Company was in reserve for us. We left camp about nine O'clock and stopped in an old stone quarry in "D'bach Valley" just behind the front lines. We had to stay until morning and we all hated this valley for nearly every night. (Cont.)

BIG BROTHER #11:

16 JULY 1966:

BIG BROTHER'S POSTAL DIPLOMACY RATINGS:

RULES:

1. Ratings are based on finished postal games.
2. Each game winner receives one point for each player starting.
3. The runner-up receives two points if he has ten units or more at finish of game.
4. Each player still alive at finish, besides the winner and runner-up (above), receives one point.
5. Each player resigning or put out of the game loses one point.
6. Team games do not count in these ratings. No postal game to count with less than five players starting.
7. Total of all points is the standing of each player.

FIRST SEVEN GAMES:

(1963A, 1963B, 1964A, 1964B, 1964C, 1965A, & 1965B)

RATING SCALE:

14 John Smythe	-1 Len Bailey
7 Derek Nelson	-1 Tom Palmer
7 Bruce Pelt	-1 Allan Calhoun
7 Charles Wells	-1 Phil Costello
6 John Boardman	-1 Ron Dahlberg
6 James MacKinnon	-1 John Koning
2 Charles Buchanan	-1 Fred Lerner
2 Eric Blake	-1 Dave McDaniel
2 John McCallum	-1 Jack Root
2 Dick Pelt	-1 James Sanders
1 John Eavy	-2 Bill Christian
1 James Goldman	-2 Paul Harley
1 Jack Harness	-2 Dick Schultz
1 Robert Lake	-2 Roland Tardif
1 James Thomas
1 Conrad von Metcke
0 Stuart Keshner
0 Earl Thompson

John McCallum, Conrad von Metcke and others have suggested the two basic changes in the otherwise unchanged Big Brother Rating System. Rule 6A makes sense and rule 3 does also. Dick Pelt, Derek Nelson, Eric Blake, & John Koning benefit by rule 3.

We now request the IDB proposal committee to adopt and/or endorse Big Brother's Rating System.

This was the first rating system and we agree with others who say, "It's the best in essence!"
